Repositioning cruises are a great bargain!

http://seattletimes.nwsourc.com/html/travel/2012455165\_webcruises27.html

Each fall and spring, cruise lines move their fleets to ports in warmer climates so that their ships will be ready to sail for the next cruise season and because people don't want to cruise when it's chilly outside. Travelers who book these repositioning sailings can enjoy cruising for less money. You may have more days at sea and fewer ports of call, but you'll still have the same access to cruise-ship amenities, including ample food, swimming pools and on-board entertainment
